A MESSAGE FROM THE EDITOR:

To meet subscriber needs, we are adding a supplement to our Orders In Council publication that will list Ministerial Orders and Proclamations which appear in the Canada Gazette Part II. Although Ministerial Orders resemble certain Orders in Council, it is important to note that they are quite distinct. Under the authority of various statutes, Ministers or certain agencies such as the National Energy Board or the Canadian Transport Commission are empowered directly to make and amend orders and regulations. Unlike Orders in Council, these do not require Cabinet approval and the approval of the Governor General.

Far fewer Ministerial Orders are approved annually compared to Orders in Council. In 1984, there were approximately 230 Ministerial Orders approved versus about 4,000 Orders in Council. Whereas only about a third of all Orders in Council appear in the Canada Gazette Part II, most Ministerial Orders are gazetted. Orders exempt from publication include those which have very limited effect, which affect national security or international relations or which affect the privacy of individuals. Rules for the publication or exemption from publication of Ministerial Orders are contained in the Statutory Instruments Regulations.

Ministerial Orders and Regulations are given an SOR reference number and any other statutory instruments are given an SI reference number. The numbering system is further explained in the footnote on the front page of the supplement.

Ministerial Orders along with registered Orders in Council are subject to examination by the Parliamentary Standing Joint Committee on Statutory Instruments; they must also be examined by the Deputy Minister of Justice pursuant to the Canadian Bill of Rights Regulations.

Although Proclamations are distinct from Ministerial Orders, they are listed in this supplement because they are also registered and published in the Canada Gazette Part II. Approval to issue Proclamations is generally given by the Governor in Council. Under the appropriate authority, the Deputy Registrar General drafts the Proclamation which is signed by the Governor General. The signed Proclamation is then sent to the Registrar of Statutory Instruments for registration and publication in the Gazette.
